Christmas Toys In Different Innate Groups

December 18, 2021

Christmas toys and Christmas tree are an important attribute in our life. But different people may choose different colors and design of their favourite toys, according to our observation. Such choice is usually dictated by innate tastes of their mentality. And there are only eight of them. So how do eight inborn groups of people celebrate the New Year and Christmas?

What Kind Of Christmas Toys Do Innate Groups Like

Patrons. They prepare for the holiday carefully, working on some details and taking out even old christmas toys from their old wooden drawers. By the way, they keep it from their grandmother. Moreover, all these toys will be used in holidays, and maybe even in the next century.

This memories create a little bit gray and moody atmosphere at home, but they accurately choose gifts for those, whom they love and would like to surprise them.

Pharaohs. They like to sit in the evening at their computer or TV and wrap their legs with a beautiful blanket. Sometimes they do not pay much attention to holidays and celebrations and usually are surprised that Christmas and New Year is coming soon. Cozy atmosphere is needed for them and such people need it not only on holidays. They prefer muted colors but with some warm inside. These people are not tired to be lonely, but they understand that friends, children or relatives will soon come to them and outdoor recreation is a part of a holiday.

Therefore, they easily and quickly book a trip to the snowy mountains. You can go skiing there, and in the evening, drink some wine together with the loved ones. Before the holiday, you may get the postcards with a beautiful drawings and congratulations from these people.

Pilgrims. It is not an easy task to create fun for such people. How can you do that? Of course, you need to go to the circus right before the holidays or the same day. It makes so fun for such people, when they see skilled acrobats that entertaining them all night long. Risky tricks with animals and performance will satisfy their ego for sure.

Pilgrims, with their sparking eyes will admire triple somersaults through burning rings. After the show is over, they will be full of impressions. Be ready, that they will take you for a walk along the city water channel or downtown to drink some coffee. They will show you sparkling garlands in the trees. After all, nothing keeps them at home, especially on a holiday.

Marxists usually stay at home all year round. And that's not a joke. The celebration of Christmas and New Year's day will not be an exception in this case. They will only invite their close family members to their home. Some serious conversations near a fireplace, spiritual advices and delicious home cake is waiting for you.

Is it boring? Maybe for some other people, but not for them. They always think about the Christmas tree and always decorate it with beautiful christmas toys and balls. By the way, the wreaths made of pine or spruce is their idea. Such people usually like to hang it on a door.

Toastmasters. Omg. This group of people cannot live without holidays. And I am sure, they invented holidays worldwide. This people never forget about it. On Christmas and New Year's Eve, they may go to the sauna and take all the ingredients for barbecue. Of course, while the grill is still not ready yet, they drink some spirits and eat canned homemade vegetables.

Families and friends come together, and they give each other symbolic gifts. These gifts are Christmas toys and something cheap. After that, they continue the feast with a huge family. When alcohol is over, they start to scream or sing loudly and use firecrackers. Everyone will hear such activity from several blocks away.

Cognitives. These people have a small holiday all year round. When you go home in Monday in April, you can still see the working garlands on their windows. Even if there is no holidays, such people use Christmas balls and toys on the streets, in shop windows and cafes. They allegedly “forgot” to remove it after the holidays and they like it. You can often see such people at amusement parks, confectionery shops and shops for kids.

These activities bring them some fresh adrenaline and makes them to remember their childhood. They need a great amount of various sweets, that have amazing shapes and colors. It is not so rare to see such people dressed in costumes of funny animals and clowns. They will always remember the dates of holidays and will congratulate you. Of course, this will happen if you are a close relative or their loved one.

Ethnos usually prepare lots of homemade food. They are not getting tired of preparing many delicious dishes a day or two before the holiday starts. Their table is always rich for tasty food and alcohol drinks. This is because they try to make the holiday look rich and bright. If the family members are not so young, they prefer to turn on the music and dance at home. Usually they like to do that with friends and relatives and drink until the morning.

For the young people, they drink and dance in bars or discos, until the morning. Each year they try to buy new toys for the Christmas tree. Some of them wants to buy a new dress or costume, because believe, that new things will bring a success.

Virtue may forget about the holidays, like the Pharaohs do. They usually do not prepare on time. After all, they are always calm people, who do not care about active festivities and christmas toys. But such people are not feeling bored or upset about it.

They prefer to fill entire streets of their town, where they sit in cafes on terraces at any holiday and for any reason. They taste a wine or a cup of fresh coffee there. At the same time, their children are having fun with joyful exclamations.
